Review

Page 88 and 89 of Chapter Seven: Friday, December 9, 2016 my mother came through in a reading telling me that I was “born in love”, and that my biological father wasn’t the man that I grew up with. I performed a 40-day prayer/candle ceremony to help my mother ascend to higher realms.

Nearly a year later: At midnight on October 31, 2017 (10-31-2017), while the veil between the spiritual world and physical world was at its thinnest, and while the constellation Pleiades (The Seven Sisters) was directly overhead, I performed the following ceremony to honor all of my ancestors that had come before me. This included the first Christians, the Essene's.

The 1st prayer was for Truth
To maintain honesty within all things especially ourselves.
The 2nd prayer was for Purity
To remain clean and wholesome and therefore pleasing in the eyes of the Ancients.
The 3rd prayer was for Faith
The resolute in knowing always are blessed to those who have faith.
The 4th prayer was for Kindness
Compassion, generosity and goodness are the guardians of the Soul.
The 5th prayer was for Patience
We must all surrender to the perfect timing of the Universe.
The 6th prayer was for Temperance
Sustain wisdom and discernment through control in moderation.
The 7th prayer was for Determination
All is lost if the will is weak. Illumination is granted to the persistent.

Introduction

Several months before I performed the ceremony on October 31 I began to experience what I like to call a small death and rebirth. It began in July of 2017, and lasted about a year, until July of 2018.

During this time several issues from my painful past resurfaced, and I was asked to take a closer look at some of the issues from back then to see if they had been healed or resolved. Some could say that I was perhaps living in the past, but that wasn't the case.

Over the course of about a year I sent numerous letters and emails to my family about everything that was surfacing regarding the last 30+ years of my life. At various times during this process I became a bit depressed. All of the emails and letters could have been a complete chapter on their own, but I've decided to keep those messages private, just between myself and my family.

Throughout this revisitation I developed a mild case of depression, and that started to show up as some minor physical ailments. I found myself in the doctors office several times during this period in my life, especially around the holidays. My doctor tested for various ailments, including HIV, only to discover that everything was fine. It was clearly emotional. Spiritually, I could feel a part of myself dying, while another part was being being born.

After creating the video for Chapter Nine: The Sacred Secret of Christ Returns, in February 2018, things began to get a bit more intense.

In March 2018, during the middle of the night, I felt the presence of my mother's spirit standing beside my bed. I jumped out of bed to see if someone was in my apartment. I then checked all of the doors to make sure that they were locked, and once I knew I was safe, crawled back into bed and went back to sleep. I sent my entire family emails and text messages the following morning letting them know what had happened. A part of me thought that maybe she had come to "take me home", and if that was the case, I figured my family needed to be aware of what was going on. My family's responses varied between mild belief, disbelief and indifference.

A few week later Ancestry.com was running a special on their DNA kit, and since both my oldest and youngest brothers had been recently been tested, I thought it would be a good opportunity to see just where I placed in the family tree.

On a side note, Madonna performed a new song at the Met Gala on May 6, 2018.

Beautiful Game: a new song that may or may not be on her next album:

It's a beautiful plan
But I'm not concerned
It's a beautiful game

That I've never learned
People tell me to shut my mouth
That I might get burned
Keep your beautiful lies
'Cause I'm not concerned

Cause your world is such a shame
Cause your worlds
obsessed with fame
Cause your world is in so much pain
Cause your world is

Two weeks later, on May 20, 2018, I received my results from Ancestry.com confirming that my siblings were not my full-blooded siblings. This not only confirmed the validity of the various astrological and psychic readings that had taken place in the past, but it confirmed my gut feeling that something wasn't quite right when certain siblings wanted to take my last name away from me 35 years earlier, when they found out I was gay. Suddenly, I understood why my mother's spirit had appeared next to my bed several weeks earlier. There was something she wanted me to know.

Instead of showing up as siblings or "Immediate Family", my two brothers showed up as uncles, half-siblings or "Close Family". They did, however, show up as siblings or "Immediate Family" to each other.

Another man appeared in my DNA match with the last name of, Ray. This man did not show up on my brothers DNA matches at all. After doing some research I learned that this man with the last name of Ray lived 7 miles from where my mother grew up as a child. He lived in a small town called, Tabor City, North Carolina. After doing a ton of research online, I discovered that he had 5 brothers; 3 deceased and 2 living. One of the deceased brothers was born the year after my mother.

I immediately reached out to him through Ancestry.com. I found his address online and sent him two letters through the US Post Office.

The first letter included a photograph of my mother from the early 1960s, and the fact that he had appeared as my uncle on Ancestry.com. This had to mean that one of his brothers was possibly my biological father. I sent Mr. Ray a second letter a week later, which included images of myself as a toddler and various stages throughout my life. I did this just in case I resembled one of his brothers.

A month later my niece that was 2 years younger than me sent in to have her DNA tested. Her results showed that my two brothers were in fact her uncles, but I showed up as a first cousin.

While all of this was coming to Light, my sister (or half-sister) was struggling with Multiple Myeloma, something that she had developed in the early part of 2016.

I had a strange feeling that someone alive in the family knew something about all this, but was keeping it a secret. Regardless, for the first time in my life I realized that I did not have any full-blooded siblings. I began to pull further away from my family so I could sort things out in my head. Now my autobiography had become a mystery.

On a side note: The last name, Ray means "Ray of Light". So biologically my name now took on a new meaning; (William) A Will (Christopher) Bearing Christ (Ray) Ray of Light. And Ray of Light was the name of Madonna's seventh studio album.

In the early part of July 2018 I completed a project that I had started the month before. I created YouTube videos for each of the 72 Names of God Angel meditations, each different ray of light. I published the following page on my website:

I turned 57 years old on July 22, 2018.
